

Zero Errors and Ahead of Schedule!

Healthstream, a national provider of online healthcare learning headquartered in Nashville, TN, needed to convert 120 healthcare courses to online content quickly - within 90 days. Each course had to be integrated with their existing learning delivery system (LDS). This included the creation of reinforcement interactions and the creation of online quizzes to ensure user understanding and retention of the content.

To meet the 90-day deadline, Wild-Webs spent several weeks creating custom tools that automated much of the conversion process. The resulting tools converted each course into a format that met Healthstream's requirements. The conversion process split each course into multiple slides, adding suitable images and Macromedia Flash movies from a healthcare image library, creating online quizzes for each course, and creating custom javascript (DHTML) code to ensure that the completed courseware was compatible with the Healthstream learning delivery system.

Not only was Wild-Webs able to meet the deadline, but the project was completed and delivered to Healthstream two weeks ahead of schedule with zero errors.
